Sussex out to defend LV County Championship title

Lancashire pushed Sussex all the way during the 2007 LV County Championship and it would take a brave person to bet against those two sides being involved again at the business end of the season this year.

Much will depend on the participation of Sussex's leg-spinning maestro Mushtaq Ahmed, who claimed 13 wickets in their final match of 2007 and whose 90 wickets during the season were again instrumental in Sussex's success.

Darren Gough will be readying himself for one more challenge for the title after a highly successful first season back at Yorkshire when he helped them to a respectable sixth.

Durham were the surprise side of 2007 after their second place finish and any side with West Indies batsman Shivnarine Chanderpaul in their ranks should be tough to beat, although star seamer Otis Gibson has retired.

Lancashire will have Stuart Law at the helm for the first time, in what could be his last season in county cricket, and his leadership could be the final piece in the jigsaw after being pipped at the post by Sussex last year and forced into third position.

Lancashire face Surrey in the first round of matches with Mark Ramprakash just three tons short of a hundred centuries and he will be keen to push through to that mark after hitting over 2,000 runs during 2007.

Champions Sussex will face a Hampshire side who will be without Shane Warne as he has other commitments for the first-half of a season - that could also be his last - while Kent face newly-promoted Nottinghamshire.

In Division Two Warwickshire will be looking to bounce

● TITLE CHALLENGERS?: Yorkshire Captain Darren Gough

straight back from relegation as they face fellow-relegates Worcestershire, who have been boosted by the arrival of England seamer Simon Jones, in the opening fixture.

Middlesex, who face Leicestershire first, have recruited well and have former England spinner Shaun Udal on board, alongside Australian seamer Ashley Noffke, as they look to go one better and secure promotion.

Former Gloucestershire favourite Jack Russell has returned to the club in a strategist role and they will open their campaign against Derbyshire, who will be led by former England all-rounder Rikki Clarke.

Meanwhile Essex, including valuable all-rounder Ravi Bopara and England Lions wicketkeeper James Foster, will go head to head with Northamptonshire first up.
